To whomsoever, it concerns

We are writing to express my deepest gratitude to Mr. Shivam Vora for his outstanding contributions to the IT Department and our institution.

Mr. Vora is a fourth-year undergraduate student in the Information Technology department of our institution. Over the last few years, we have been redesigning our institution's branding. Mr. Vora has been a leading contributor to this initiative. He has completed designing the following projects for us:

- Student Profile Portal – The substantial aim of this portal is to bridge the gap between faculty mentors and students. It acts as a credible source of student information. It allows the students to showcase their academia along with their professional and interpersonal skills & ongoing six-monthly progress on this portal. This profile portal assists the faculty mentors to identify the key skills and expertise of students to write effective LORs for them. It also gives students a chance to display their academic and professional competence in a well-articulated manner.
- Placement Test Portal - This portal is a proctored employability assessment for third and fourth-year engineering students. It gives information on a candidate's performance and areas for improvement across modules that are important for a successful career. This portal helps the faculty placement coordinators identify and assess students' key skills and expertise, as well as their readiness for placements. Different modules in this portal cover all relevant aspects such as cognitive, domain, personality, and others that will aid them in their preparation for placements. Students can gain knowledge and experience of the skill needs of organizations as well as the benchmarks they use for entry-level and lateral recruitment across all major industries by attempting such tests. These insights can be used to improve skills and take a step forward in a long-term career.
- Currently, he is redesigning the website of the institution. Mr. Vora has been diligently leading this project towards success and has given us constant support and ideas on how can we make the website more user-friendly and useful to the new users.

There are a few things about Mr. Vora that make him stand out amongst his peers. First, Mr. Vora has a great eye for design. He has a fresh perspective on UI/UX. His designs are always user-centric and evoke an emotional response in the end-users interacting with them. Mr. Vora ensures that his designs reflect the core values of our institution.

Secondly, he has amazing project management and organizational skills. Mr. Vora has led all the initiatives diligently. His deliverables are always on time and of the highest quality. He has accomplished all of this while pursuing his undergraduate degree in IT. He has always secured a great CGPA and falls in the top 3% of his class.

Last but not the least, Mr. Vora has a great attitude. He is a good listener and ensures that he has a good understanding of different perspectives. He has collaborated with different stakeholders and is always keen on learning new things. He takes feedback very seriously and has a growth-oriented mindset.

As evident from this letter, Mr. Vora would be a great asset to any team or institution. We have immense gratitude and respect for him and we wish him the best in his future endeavors.
